Bob Hope Band Scholarship Essay

By Julie Mullen

Is it ironic that such an inspiring modern hero would have the last name of Hope? Through his musical ability, leadership, sense of humor and desire to serve our global community, Bob Hope has helped to spread a giant mass of hope to people all over the world. He is someone that has encouraged and enthused many to spread comparable hope. I admire Bob Hope for each of these qualities, and am striving for similar characteristics in my own life.

To begin to compare my musical ability to that of Bob Hope would be foolish. His talent far exceeds most and is something I can only observe and admire as an interested supporter. However, I am inspired by Bob Hope's love for music and his passion for sharing it. My musical ability is something I work to improve because I too love music. I once described the stages of learning a cello concerto to my mother: First, I start a new piece, and I am excited to practice because it is new and I am just beginning to become familiar with the melody. The next stage is when I learn which parts are hard and avoid them for a while, playing through only the simple, recognizable parts. After a while, I face the reality that a piece is not complete without the difficult, technical phrases and I practice slowly despite some frustration. With a bit of self-discipline and reminders from my teacher I work hard on the details of the piece, not just playing through casually. The final stage is my favorite- the run-throughs. I love the feeling of mastering a piece so well that I can relax and listen to myself as I play. It is amazing to me what the right mix of sound frequencies can do to a person's emotions. As drum major, I love the swelling in my heart when the big hit in our field show soars over my head and everyone plays passionately with a sense of unity and pride as the crowd goes wild behind me. Even when I'm at home, and I mean for the music to be just in the background while I study, I sometimes can't help but take a dancing break and spin around the kitchen as the strings build up and the horns cry out a gorgeous counter-melody.

Besides his musical ability, Bob Hope was an excellent leader. As I encounter new group dynamics every day, I am learning and growing in leadership initiative all the time. My two years as drum major have been the most important time of development in my ability to lead. I sometimes struggle to find the right balance of authority and humility, assertiveness and flexibility, pushing and understanding. My biggest difficulty in leadership is in disciplining others. I discovered this about myself in a training session before a mission's trip to Guatemala a few years ago where I was introduced to various personality "animals." Each animal represented a possible way of dealing with conflict. Naturally, I am a "koala"- I shrink back at the presence of conflict and take the blame for whatever happened so as to end the conflict as quickly as possible. When I was selected as drum major, I had to suppress a bit of the koala in me. My instinct as I critiqued members of the band on their marching style was to say "Yes, try to keep your toes a little higher on this move...but if you don't want to of course that's fine. You're doing great." Though my natural elasticity and kindness is valuable in certain situations, I had to learn to be firm and assertive, while
